A DIRECTORY

OF THE BUSINESS

1887

PUBLISHED IN EBANON, 1887.
TO THE PUBLIC.

In getting out this, the first Directory of the business of Lebanon, many obstacles came in the way.

Abroad Lebanon is heard of as an active business place, and a closer acquaintance with its people, and its various industries, fully confirm the report.

The indifference of some business men, to this effort, who fail to realize that directories are as much an established part of a city's welfare as anything else, was very disheartening; but, by far the largest part of the community have given to this first attempt to prepare a Business Directory for Lebanon, their hearty support, and for this the publisher is very grateful.

The book may not be absolutely perfect, but no effort has been spared to make it so, and the omission of any business name was not intentional.

Some few, who should know better, have made sneering remarks, which, naturally, might have the tendency to injure the work in the eyes of the public; but, we are happy to know that, so far as we are aware, their efforts had no further effect than to cause their remarks to be unpleasantly criticised by the public.

Our endeavor has been to give as much prominence as possible to the different industries of the city, both for the benefit of strangers and possible new citizens, as well as for the present community.

BOONE COUNTY.

It has not been many years since Boone county was regarded as a place where farming might be carried on upon a raft or in top boots. Too much wet ground was the cry, and yet the moment any thoughtful mind reflected about the matter, a ready solution of the difficulty was easily found.

This county is very near the geographical center of Indiana and occupies much higher ground than the surrounding country. In this fact it was an easy answer as to what to do with the water and the boggy and swampy land. Ditching and tile drainage have overcome all these drawbacks, till to-day Boone county actually "blossoms as a rose."

Drive which ever way you may, outside the city of Lebanon, and a splendid panorama of field and farm, grain and pasture, farm houses and out-buildings, fruit and ornamental trees, greet the eye on every hand.

Leading into the city are some twelve free gravel roads, all in fine condition, forming a net work of arteries to carry the blood of the county to its heart, Lebanon, and thence back again to every home and fireside. Lebanon is the supply depot of the county and the county the feeder of the city, each doing its part, each benefiting and enriching the other, and each dependent on the other for its support and progress.

The soil is of the finest quality, easily tilled, and produces a larger average yield than probably any other in the State. The wet ground, as soon as it is brought into cultivation, is found to be the very best for general farming purposes, retaining the moisture against the severest droughts, and readily shedding it when overcharged with too much rain. All kinds of small grains yield in great abundance, and corn is a never-failing crop.

Some of the finest stock farms in the State are in Boone county. Among the names of their enterprising owners may be mentioned

HENRY E. MILLER,

Of Clinton township, who farms 400 acres, but whose principal business is raising stock and hogs for breeding purposes, and for market.

About a mile east of Lebanon is located the stock farm of BRUSH & DARNALL.

They do business in heavy and light draft horses, roadsters and trotting horses. They deal mostly in Hambletonian stock, and their stallions, Jim Wilson, No. 1653, eight years old; Omega, three years old, and Troy, by Ajax, two years old, are direct descendants of their grandsire, Rysdyke’s Hambletonian. The firm of Brush & Darnall can always be found at their stables on West Main street, Lebanon, where they extensively deal in horses.

Then, just south of town is the fine farm of

J. N. SHIRLEY,

Who is a heavy dealer and raiser of stock of improved breeds.

The average yield of grains show a high per cent.
Wheat not less than twenty bushels to the acre, other small grains show a large average, and corn not less than sixty bushels to the acre.

The population of Boone county is now something over 26,000.

LEBANON.

In the very center of this splendid country lies the City of Lebanon, county seat of Boone county.

"Sweet Lebanon, fairest city of the plain."

Its geographical position does much for it, but the energy of its citizens does much more. Easily reached, as we have mentioned, by its numerous free gravel roads, from every part of the county, and located on the main line of the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Chicago Railroad, and now more recently cross-sectioned by the Midland Railway, every facility is offered for travel and quick transportation to every point of the compass. The Big 4 always stood high in railroad circles, and since the advent of the Midland road the citizens of Lebanon reap the benefit to be derived from competing lines. Between the two roads twelve passenger trains arrive and depart from Lebanon every day, thus affording the fullest convenience to the business public. The city is well laid out and contains many fine business houses, has good wide streets, many splendid residences, and many of the varied manufacturing interests that go so far to the building up of a town and making it thrive. The city seems to be the "Mecca" of the farmers for miles around, and the almost universal thought of a stranger, on spending his first Saturday in town, is, "where do all these people come from? What is going on in town to-day?" is the frequent question put by the stranger, when, for the first time he tries to count the teams around the court house square. The streets throng with people, women and children jostle and crowd each other in the shops, as the beaming proprietors familiarly address each new-comer and hastens off to fill orders or meet customers. Very marked is the strong feeling of sociability pervading everywhere—the men discussing the crop prospect, county matters or politics, and the ladies intent on their purchases.

All of the ordinary businesses and trades are fairly represented. The farm implement, wagon and carriage, and grain warehouses, the many manufactory interests and fine stores, all bespeak a healthy, active and pushing community, with plenty of room and a welcome for new-comers.

Four steam saw mills, two planing mills, three grain elevators, two splendid flouring mills, a fine machine shop, a broom factory, a wire fence factory, plow handle factory, two furniture factories, a tannery, two tile factories, two brick yards supplying nearly 2,000,000 brick per annum, a creamery, a carriage factory, sash, door and blind factory and several builders' materials warehouses and a nursery.

These and many others are some of the industries of Lebanon, giving employment to a large number of men. Among some of the special industries, one of peculiar interest, is the Apiary of

GEORGE J. FREY.

He has nearly one hundred hives of the busy workers presided over by imported Italian and Cyprian queens, each hive produces over 100 pounds.
One of the busiest places in town is the planing mill of

H. VAN NUYS & CO.

The firm consists of H. Van Nuys, and his nephew, H. E. Van Nuys. They are the proprietors of the Lebanon Planing Mill, and do a large business in lumber. They manufacture doors, sash, blinds, mouldings, and all kinds of building materials. The hum of the machinery bespeaks activity and life. Visiting the mill is a pleasure. Both members of the firm take a hand in what is going on, besides attending to their office and extend a hearty, pleasant greeting to the visitor.

BUSBY & SON.

This firm went into the business of manufacturing flour in the Spring of 1881. Every stranger will see their splendid mill as the train slows up at the depot. The Globe Mills are well known both in Indiana as well as Lebanon, and have a capacity of 125 barrels of flour daily. They also deal extensively in corn and other grains. The senior member of the firm, Mr. F. M. Busby, died about June, 1886, but the business is carried on under the old firm name by Mr. C. E. Busby, who looks able and is quite competent to do it.

A very prominent citizen is

who is taking so much interest in the question of natural gas, and who seems determined to find it if money and trying will do it. Mr. Nealis is one of wealthiest men of Lebanon, owning much real estate. His well-known form and genial face are probably better known to the people than any other of the town.
A large grain buyer is

SAMUEL S. HEATH,
well known for his very active interest in the success of the Midland Railway, furnishing large supplies of ties and bridge timber.

J. D. ALEXANDER
does a large business at his grain elevator, and is also agent for farm implements.

The firm of

BOWSER & BOOHER
deal extensively at their grain elevator and also sellBinders, Mowers and the celebrated Advance Engine and Thresher.

On the other side of town we find

P. MORRIS & SON,
proprietors of the Lebanon Roller Mills. Strings of farmers’ wagons loaded with grain, waiting their turn, tell any one that business there is good.

A recent industry that should receive the support and encouragement of the people is found at the south extremity of the city. We refer to the nursery of

PHelps & STOUTE.

These gentlemen have a fine assortment of young and thrifty ornamental and fruit trees; also of small fruits and flowers. Nothing adds so much to the beauty of a residence as the finishing touches of ornamental trees, and we feel justified in recommending the efforts of these young and enterprising gentlemen to our friends.

M. M. MANNER

Has a better equipped job printing office than is found in cities of a much larger population than Lebanon, and of course does the principal part of the job printing, having a large patronage, due to his getting out the best work and doing the cheapest. He does the printing for Boone county, having obtained the contract against Indianapolis competition.

Three newspapers, the Pioneer, Patriot and Mercury, divide the honors due the fourth estate. The appearance, as to make up, is excellent, and their edtorial work is performed by men of state reputations in their political creeds. Their advertising columns show that the business men of Lebanon know the value of printer’s ink, and use it.

Two banks supply the circulating medium and money is easily obtained at a moderate interest.

The professions are represented by men of ability and skill.

The morality of the city is shown by referring to its churches. The Baptists have a fine new edifice, costing $5,000, having a seating capacity of 500. The Christian church also cost $5,000, with a seating capacity of 500. The beautiful new brick building of the Methodists cost $10,000 with accommodations for 600. The Presbyterian Church, a brick structure, cost $8,000 and seats 500. The Methodist Church (colored) cost $1,000 and seats 200 people. The Roman Catholic Church has a capacity of 300 and cost $2,000.

The citizens are fully alive to the spirit of education. Recently, on the south side, a new two story brick building has been erected, costing $10,000, and the old Academy building in the center of the city is being torn down to give place to a splendid structure, to be at once erected, to cost $20,000.

Two squares north of Court House.
Those enterprising citizens,

J. C. BROWN & CO.,

A few years ago, built a splendid opera house, three stories in height, with a sixty foot front and one hundred and twenty feet deep. The lower floor is used by this firm as a warehouse for storing and selling wagons, carriages and farm machinery, and the two upper floors for the opera house, capable of holding over 1,000 people.

While the hotel accommodations are more than good, for the low rates charged, yet a new and modern building is needed, and the erection of a new hotel is among the near future events of Lebanon.

The societies are represented by the Masons, the order of the Eastern Star, Odd Fellows, Daughters of Rebecca, Grand Army of the Republic, Knights of Labor, Knights of Pythias, Improved Order of Red Men and Knights of Honor. These orders, so dear to American people, have large memberships, particularly the Knights of Pythias, which enrolls 165 members.

The court house, in its day, was one of the finest in the State, and is a fine building still.

The Sheriff's residence, with jail attached, is a new brick building, costing $27,000, and nicely fills the north-east corner of the square, opposite the court house.

Business property is held firm, but building lots in good locations can be bought for from $150 to $500. Rents are moderate, but desirable business locations command a fair price, and offer good investments to builders of city property.

the city as its increase in population in the last five years. In 1880 the census showed 2,400, while the late school census gives a population of nearly 5,000, and a valuation of property of $1,200,000. When compared with other cities of its size it will be found that but few can show the material prosperity of Lebanon, and the push, activity and business qualities of its citizens, bespeak for the city increased prosperity and happiness.

WICKERS' IMPROVED FENCE POST.
Patented March 29, 1887.

For years we have been experimenting with the fence post, in order to steady the post and hold it firmly in its position, and keep the post from rotting off at the bottom; and, in our judgment, it is as near perfection as it is possible to attain. It is a combination post on each side of the wires. The posts are made of any desired size or material, and may be buried at any distance below the surface of the earth, and a free circulation of air is provided by the holes at the ends of the posts. The anchors may be of any desired size or material, and may be buried in immediate contact with the surface of the earth. The lower end of the post is thus preserved in immediate contact with the surface of the earth, and also prevents the surface drainage from escaping from contact with the ground. The posts will last for many years, and cost but eight cents each. Territory for sale. Farmers, join us.

W. S. CHARLTON, Prop.
MAYORS.

A gentleman has kindly handed us the following interesting information: Lebanon became an incorporated city in November, 1875. S. L. Hamilton was the first Mayor, and served until May, 1878; then Thomas W. Lockhart was chosen, and served until May, 1880; then came Wesley C. Girard, who served until May, 1881; after him came John L. Pierce, who remained in office up to May, 1884; Thomas C. Laughlin then became Mayor and served up to May, 1886, when I. M. Kelsey was elected and is the Mayor of to-day.

MARSHALS.

Jesse Perkins was the first Marshal, serving from 1875 to 1878; then came John W. Herod, who served from 1878 to 1880. From 1880 to 1881 Oliver C. Witt did duty; from 1881 to 1882 William Millett looked after the order of Lebanon; then came James Monroe, who acted from 1882 to 1884; after him came Fred Langjhar, who seceded up to May, 1886, when John W. Herod was made Marshal and still holds the position.
